

```

import java.util.Scanner;
public class CurrencyConverter
{
    public static void main(String[] args)
    {
        Scanner scanner = new Scanner (System.in);
        String[] currencies = {"USD (US Dollar)","Eur(Euro)","GBP(British POUND)","INR(Indian RUpee)"}; double[] ratesTable = {1.0,0.92,0.79,83.50};
        System.out.println("=====Welcome to the Currency Converter=====");
        for(int i=0;i<currencies.length;i++)
        {
            System.out.println((i+1)+" "+currencies[i]);
        }
        System.out.println("=====");
        System.out.print("Select your Base currency (1-4):");
        int baseSelection = scanner.nextInt()-1;
        System.out.print("Select your TARGET currency(1-4):");
        int targetSelection = scanner.nextInt() - 1;

        if(baseSelection<0||baseSelection>=currencies.length||targetSelection<0||targetSelection>=currencie
            s.length)
        {
            System.out.println("Error:Invalid currency selection.Please restart the program.");
            return;
        }

        System.out.print("Enetr the amount you want to convert:");
        double inputAmount = scanner.nextDouble();
        if(inputAmount<0)
        {
            System.out.println("Error:Amount cannot be negative.");
            return;
        }

        double amountUSD = inputAmount/ratesTable[baseSelection];
        double convertedAmount = amountUSD*ratesTable[targetSelection];
        String basecode = currencies[baseSelection].substring(0,3);
        String targetCode = currencies[targetSelection].substring(0,3);
        System.out.println("\n-----");
        System.out.printf("Result: %.2f %s = %.2f %s\n",inputAmount, basecode,convertedAmount,targetCode);
        System.out.println("-----");
        scanner.close();
    }
}

```